introduction

How much is too much, and when is it just enough?

Less or More brings together artists working across different techniques, styles, and levels of experience. Their diversity is what makes this exhibition so engaging, each voice adding its own rhythm to the whole.

Some works find power in simplicity and space, giving us room to pause and think. Others dive into abundance, embracing energy, color, and intensity. Together, they show that there is no single answer to less or more.

What feels right depends on who we are and where we are in life. At times we need quiet to organize our thoughts; at others, we need movement and overflow to feel alive.

Less or More invites you to find your own balance between these two forces, and to notice how they continuously shape the way we create and see the world.
